

Years of Grace

A community portrait project celebrating people aged 80 and over

I believe that everyone should have a beautiful portrait of themselves in later life.

Years of Grace is a personal photography project celebrating people aged 80 and over through thoughtful portraits made in the comfort of their own homes.

Each portrait session is relaxed and unhurried, allowing plenty of time to talk and get to know one another. During the visit, I'll also ask one simple question about life and the wisdom that comes with experience. With permission, these portraits and reflections may become part of a future zine or book.

There is no charge to take part.

Every participant will receive:

- A relaxed portrait session at home.
- A beautifully printed A4 portrait to keep.
- The opportunity to contribute their portrait and words to a project celebrating later life.

Who can take part?

Anyone aged 80 or over, living in Birmingham or the surrounding area.

If you know a family member, friend or neighbour who might enjoy taking part, I'd love to hear from you.
